OUT OF THE ORDINARY

Onetime art director and online designer Leah Giberson now creates art of a more tangible sort. She hunts for photographs of suburban scenes—homes, cars, pools—and mounts them on wood panels; then she enhances these images with layers of acrylic paint. The results are hauntingly dreamlike views of everyday life. "The photograph is the starting point," says the Brookline-based artist. "But the story continues and evolves as you move around the piece." ORIGINAL PAINTINGS, $400–$1,200, AND PRINTS, $35–$75; AVAILABLE AT LEAHGIBERSON.ETSY.COM.
